

LaTrippe Creek and Trappe Landing

Opreys takeover dock, paddlers suffer in 90+ heat, balloons retrieved from water preventing ecological disaster, house boat of ill repute discovered.

WE braved the heat once again and found it cooler on the water as is often the case. Despite our heightened awareness for debris in the water, particularly plastics, we seldom find much but this time two balloons were pulled from the creek thus sparing a creature from an unhealthy snack and certain dyspepsia or worse even. Then there is the houseboat which I failed to properly document by not taking a picture of the words blazoned across the sides and worse I can't exactly recall their ribald nature but they did more than suggest debauchery. Let me know if you can recall in a PM. We paddled about 6 miles and made it to the sand bar just before the creek enters the BIG water of the Choptank. Martin Point Light was in sight. If my faulty memory isn't I think we ate lunch at Victory Garden in Easton.

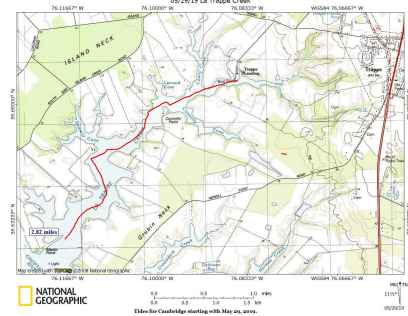

Balloons proudly displayed

Osprey dock Squatters

Amazing photo of motionless Tree Swallow

Where we went

Out to the Choptank

Cedar struggles

